

Cathy Haun is a para at Boyd County Schools. On the side she has a business called "Name Your Price Photography". Haun has been doing Photography for 12 years because of her grandchildren. The whole reason for starting her business was because of her grandchildren. She loves to take pictures of them, so it inspired her to become a photographer. One of her goals in her business is to keep going until her grandchildren graduate, so she can take pictures of their graduation. After that, she will probably quit the business. Haun believes that an advantage in photography is being able to not be in the picture, "Which is a good thing," she jokingly said. However, the equipment can cost a fortune while in the business. Also trying to create ideas, and interesting ways for certain pictures can be a challenge.
